

---

Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by halo5 - 2009/07/02 07:51

---

anybody had any experience with them? Sounds like a pretty good guarantee:

www.isat-prep.us/LSATPREP.HTML

* edited by mod to remove linkbuilding - type in the url to see the site.

=====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by General - 2009/07/02 07:51

---

If you think they are employing good strategies, then by all means use it. But to use it for their guarantee is kind of silly for two reasons...

- 1) Say you get the 165. Then the guarantee doesnt apply.
  - 2) If you dont get the 165, you wasted your time on the class, and if you learned nothing you now might have to spend money on another class.
- =====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by egon - 2009/07/02 07:52

---

Then what? Say you dont get the 165 on test day, they tell you what?? Sorry? Heres your money back?? I'd rather have a 165.

=====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by headely - 2009/07/02 07:52

---

"if you do not score at least 165, your subsequent LSAT prep support is FREE." As you can see from this quote taken directly from their website, you will not be refunded. If you desire additional LSAT prep, they will provide it to you, free.

=====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by juno9 - 2009/07/02 07:53

---

If a person failed to get their "guaranteed" 165 minimum, then why would someone take them up on their offer for free support? If it didn't work the first time, then there is a 99.9~% chance that it won't work any subsequent times either.

=====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by jumperway - 2009/07/02 07:54

---

The test prep company is most vulnerable to criticism on the grounds that the argument fails to consider

(A) that multiple attempts in classroom prep will not achieve the desired result of a 165+ score

=====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by wavvrnner - 2009/07/02 07:54

---

---

That's lame. I don't know about all the LSAT prep courses, but I do know that Kaplan will let you retake their course again for free if you're not happy with your score. I did. So all in all, the company doesn't offer anything that Kaplan, the prep company that seems to get ripped on a lot here, doesn't. If anything it offers less by setting a limit (165) that will deter those who want to take the course again from doing so. And like others have said, nobody can guarantee you a specific LSAT score.

=====

Re:Prep test company has 165+ guarantee

Posted by haydenc - 2009/07/02 07:56

---

I would avoid them like the plague. First, I signed up with them for the June test. At the last minute (two weeks before the test) they cancelled the class. I was angry, but they offered to enroll me in their September class for the October test. The entire summer goes by and I am studying their materials getting ready for the class, and a week before the class they tell me through some mix-up I was never registered for the September class. I was confused because I was in constant contact with the guy who runs the LSAT division for the company the entire summer. How can you not know I wasn't registered? The class was booked up and I was out of luck again. I called to ask if there was some way to get me into the class. He says "I'll try to get you in the class." This part is important, because after a week of going back and forth with them, he fails to never tell me that there was no way I was getting in the class. Why he didn't just tell me that flat out, I don't know. I felt like I was being jerked around. I didn't like the way I was treated or talked to, so I asked for a refund. That was a mess, because they emailed me only after I emailed them to ask them about when I was getting my refund. Their email consisted of them not having a record of me paying me. I had to send an email with bank statement attached, to prove I paid. I don't know what type of company they are running, but they are disorganized and unprofessional. Studying for the LSAT is stressful enough without having to deal with stuff like this. Go with another company.

=====