
how to study for retake?

Posted by J. forge - 2009/10/05 22:08

I need some advice from those that have retaken the LSAT or from those that score in the top 10 percentile. I took the June LSAT and scored in the low 150's which is not good enough to go really anywhere. I know i screwed up on RC passage.

Prior to taking the June LSAT, i took a Test Masters course and did almost all prior LSAT practice exams.

However, even with all my effort, scheduling, and quantity of questions completed and review, i still scored so low that i cant get in anywhere worth going.

What is the best way to re-prepare in this situation? And any specific advice on acing the RC section?

=====

Re:how to study for retake?

Posted by Sal Socco - 2009/10/07 20:58

All i know from your post is that you scored in the low 150s but i am not sure what factors caused you to score so low. Was it test taking anxiety? Was it not understanding which answers are wrong? Please provide the additional information to properly determine what the cause of the low score.

=====